Ex-beauty queen escapes criminal record for riot role

Court. Remorseful actions earn woman leniency from judge

Former Miss Congeniality Sophie Carmelle Laboissonniere, 21, is poised for a life without a criminal record despite her participation in Vancouver's 2011 Stanley Cup riots.

Laboissonniere was sentenced Tuesday to a conditional discharge with 16 months probation for looting the London Drugs on Granville and West Georgia alongside 300 others after the Canucks lost Game 7 to the Boston Bruins.

The ex-beauty queen is only the second rioter to avoid a criminal record out of about 70 who have been sentenced thus far.

Most rioters received a two-month conditional sentence to deter future riots, but Laboissonniere got a lighter punishment due to her remorseful behaviour, low level of crime and mental-health issues, Judge Brian Bastin said.

Laboissonniere, then 19, was only in the store for about 30 seconds and pilfered two bottles of water, a bag of chips and a Canucks water bottle, all of which she dropped upon exiting.

Her lawyer David Baker argued the extreme media exposure of her case — article clippings from 35 countries filled three binders worth of evidence and her image appeared on pornographic websites — caused public humiliation that should net a lighter sentence.

"It's all over the Internet and it's going to stay there forever," Baker said.

Laboissonniere also struggled with depression and anxiety, might have been on medication, and was "not herself" that night, according to her sister, Baker said. She was hospitalized for suicidal thoughts for two weeks in fall 2011 and in 2008.

Since the riot, she has spoken to more than 600 high school students about consequences, pleaded guilty, apologized for her behaviour in court, written an apology letter to London Drugs and paid the store $500.

These actions earned her more leniency than the "intense" media exposure, the judge said. A criminal record could "ruin her life," he said, and would be disproportionate to her brief criminal conduct.

Laboissonniere's probation includes a three-month curfew, 60 hours of community service, psychiatric counselling and a ban from London Drugs.

Byelection

Not looking for an easy win: Clark

Premier Christy Clark says she isn't taking an expected win in Wednesday's Westside-Kelowna byelection as a sure thing, which is why she says she's campaigning as hard in the byelection as she did in May's provincial election.

Clark said Tuesday she wants to earn every vote in her bid to return to B.C.'s legislature.

"If I'm elected, four years from now, I want people to look at me and say she did what she said she was going to do," said Clark. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aiming for 2020

City on track for green goals

Greenhouse-gas levels are down four per cent in Vancouver since 2007 in spite of increasing population, city staff reported Tuesday.

Capturing methane gas from the landfill was a huge contributor to the decline and removed the equivalent of 88,000 cars from the road, said Amanda Pitre-Hayes, the city's director of sustainability.

But the greenest goals are still "ambitious" and city staff "need to roll up our sleeves" to reach them by 2020, she said.

Challenges include convincing people to retrofit their homes, as natural-gas prices remain low.

Yet the program has seen other successes, including an 11 per cent reduction in landfill waste, a 21 per cent increase in food assets and a 10 per cent increase in people travelling by bike, foot or transit.

'Mr. Big sting' used in terror-plot arrest: Lawyer

Suspects appear in court. Attorney for John Nuttall says undercover tactics and perhaps even elements of entrapment were part of police investigation

Mounties used an undercover operation known as the Mr. Big sting to ensnare two people accused of a terror plot on British Columbia's legislature, said a lawyer for one of the accused.

John Nuttall and Amanda Korody, who are alleged to have planned the bombing to coincide with Canada Day celebrations, appeared briefly in Surrey provincial court on Tuesday.

The case was then moved to the B.C. Supreme Court because federal Crown prosecutor Martha Devlin asked for a direct indictment, which requires the accused to be placed on trial without a preliminary inquiry.

After the court appearance, lawyer Tom Morino told reporters outside that while he knows few details about the investigation that led to Nuttall and Korody's arrest last week, he knows that police used certain undercover tactics.

"While it's very premature, it is my understanding that there was, as we've all come to know what is a Mr. Big operation," he said. "There was that component to this investigation."

A Mr. Big police sting is an investigative technique that requires officers to go undercover in order to gain the trust of suspects and ultimately obtain confessions used later in court.

When asked by a reporter, Morino also said he suspects certain elements of entrapment — where a law enforcement agent induces a person to commit a crime that the person would otherwise have been unlikely to commit — may also have been part of the investigation.

None of Morino's speculations have been confirmed by the police.

On Tuesday, both Nuttall and Korody appeared dishevelled, but happy to see each other after they were led into separate prisoners' boxes.

Nuttall, a tall 38-year-old from Victoria with messy dark hair and a beard, walked into the courtroom wearing a red T-shirt and clutching a copy of the Qur'an.

His partner Korody, who is from St. Catharines, Ont., appeared in a green T-shirt. She seemed slightly wary at first, but smiled happily at Nuttall when she saw him.

Morino said the two are "devoted to each other" and are being kept in segregation while detained in different institutions. THE CANADIAN PRESS

NSA scandal

Snowden off to Venezuela ... or not

WikiLeaks said on Tuesday that NSA leaker Edward Snowden has not yet formally accepted asylum in Venezuela, trying to put to rest growing confusion over whether he had taken up the country's offer.

Venezuelan President Nicolas Maduro says his country has accepted a request for asylum from the former NSA systems analyst.

On Tuesday, a prominent Russian lawmaker tweeted that Snowden had taken the offer, then deleted the posting a few minutes later.

He then sent another message saying his claim was based on a report from a state TV channel, which in turn said the lawmaker misunderstood its report.

Who abandons a Ferrari? A lawyer in a serious hurry

There it was: A Ferrari, submerged in the murky floodwaters of Toronto.

Howard A. Levitt, one of Canada's leading employment lawyers, was on his way to a critical hearing in Ottawa. He entered an underpass following several other cars, which easily traversed what looked like a puddle.

No such luck for Levitt.

His $192,000 Ferrari rides very close to the ground, and despite its powerful engine, it only took a few inches of water to bring it to a halt.

He took a cab to the airport. On Tuesday, Levitt won his motion in Ottawa.

"It's a good ending, except for my poor car," he said.

Lac-Mégantic home to a burnt-out crime scene

Death toll still rising. Police tight-lipped on what they have found or are still looking for

The official death toll in the Quebec train disaster climbed to 15 on Tuesday, with two more bodies pulled from a scorched area police were calling a crime scene.

With about another 35 people still missing, residents of Lac-Mégantic expect the grim news to continue.

Provincial police said they had 200 officers on site performing a criminal investigation.

"There is potential evidence there that could eventually lead to criminal charges being laid," said Insp. Michel Forget.

He revealed that police are not leaning towards terrorism as a hypothesis but are more likely exploring the idea of criminal negligence.

"I won't speculate on the elements we have recovered because they will be secret."

The result is that the downtown core of Lac-Mégantic falls within a security perimeter and trespassers could be charged with obstructing justice if they venture into what police are calling "the red zone."

Earlier on Tuesday, the national Transportation Safety Board said it is performing its own investigation.

The TSB said Tuesday that authorities were never alerted to the fact that a runaway train was on its way to levelling part of the small Quebec town.

Rail dispatchers had no chance to intervene during the fateful 18-minute journey because they didn't know it was happening, TSB investigator Donald Ross told reporters.

"There were no signals nor track circuits, so the rail-traffic controller had no ... indication that there had been a runaway train," he said.

Such systems are in place on busier rail lines but not on secondary lines, said TSB manager Ed Belkaloul.

On Tuesday, Pope Francis sent a blessing from the Vatican to those touched by the tragedy. In a statement announcing that "special apostolic blessing," the Pope expressed his sympathy to victims, their families and emergency workers.

Changes may be on the horizon

Edward Burkhardt, CEO and president of the company that owns the train, is set to visit Lac-Mégantic this week, where he will likely face outrage and tough questions.

He told the CBC in an interview that the company has already changed some of its procedures. He also suggested that the decision to staff trains with one-man crews and leave them unattended during breaks might have to change.

Questions were also raised about the rail tankers involved in the crash.

The tankers are known as DOT-111 and have a history of puncturing during accidents, TSB investigator Donald Ross has said.

Flaws in the DOT-111 have been noted as far back as a 1991 study.

Pipeline CEO says no silver lining in Quebec rail disaster

Lac-Mégantic. While many suspect rail disaster will boost pipeline support, execs say concerns apply to all

Executives with major Canadian pipeline companies say they see no silver lining to the Lac-Mégantic train disaster.

There have been suggestions that transporting oil by pipeline may seem more palatable after several oil-laden rail cars exploded over the weekend, killing more than a dozen people and devastating the small Quebec town.

But TransCanada Corp. CEO Russ Girling said there's "no good news here for anybody" in the tragedy and the notion that the pipeline industry will somehow benefit from it "makes no sense."

While disasters ranging from Lac-Mégantic to the massive BP oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico three years ago jolt the public, Girling said companies such as TransCanada still have a responsibility to build new energy infrastructure.

"People continue to have needs for starting their vehicles every morning, cooking their food, heating their homes. We have an obligation to do that as safely as we can."

The president of Kinder Morgan Canada, which is planning to nearly triple the amount of crude shipped on its Trans Mountain line between Alberta and the B.C. Lower Mainland, said he too fails to see any upside for pipeline firms resulting from Lac-Mégantic.

"I think that the public is obviously very concerned about the broad safety net that is available for both rail and pipelines," he said.

"I think it's a question of all operators — whether it's pipe or rail or trucking for that matter — (to) continue to be very diligent and vigilant in their safety precautions."

WANT TO KNOW YOUR DEATHDAY?

JUST SAYIN'

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

Another day, another amazing scientific breakthrough.

This one, I have to admit, actually is amazing. And disturbing.

A team of scientists in the U.K. have come up with a blood test for infants that will predict how quickly they will age and how long they will live.

Talk about "born to die."

These scientists have identified 22 metabolites — molecules linked to metabolism — that help govern a host of bodily mechanisms such as lung function, bone density, blood pressure, cholesterol levels, etc.

Putting a positive spin on it, the scientists believe that they will now be able to influence these metabolic factors and treat age-related diseases before they put us on the wrong side of the lawn.

But seriously, do you really want to know when it's over — as soon as it begins? Right now, Canadians can expect an average life expectancy of 81 years, which seems comfortably far off when you're three days old. But what if your metabolites predict a 50-year life span — or worse? It seems a bit unfair to expect someone to start working on a bucket list before he's out of short pants.

How long will it be before metabolite blood tests are routine? Together with genetic analysis, the fate of the child will be sealed before the first car ride home. Career, insurance coverage, diet, hobbies, whatever, will all be based on their metabolic or genetic impact — or both. "Epigenetics" is the means by which environmental factors switch certain genes on or off. So, conceivably, the state of your metabolites will help determine your genetic array and vice versa.

Together they take all the guesswork out of life. Maybe all the fun, too.

If you were still harbouring any notions of free will, it's time to put all that aside and start the grim dance of biological determinism.

It's hard enough bringing kids into the world. If you're lucky enough to give birth to a relatively robust being who will take care of you in your dotage, it's almost worth the investment, but if the poor little gaffer will expire before you're 64, what's the point?

Of course, it doesn't matter what I think or what you think. Medical science marches forward, regardless. Once the genie is out of the test tube, it's not about to allow itself to get stuffed back in.

Still, I'm glad I have no idea what my best-before date is. For all I know, I could be looking forward to a telegram from the Queen when I turn 100. She'll certainly still be around.

Or the wheels could fall off next Thursday.

Ignorance is bliss.

N.Y.C. bar scene having an ice age

BEBETO MATTHEWS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baby, it's cold in the ice cave

In the sweltering summer heat, New Yorkers are ready for the big chill — in midtown Manhattan.

The city's first ice bar is now open at the New York Hilton Midtown on Sixth Avenue. The $20 admission includes Eskimo-style gloves and a parka for the privilege of drinking cocktails in the freezing Minus5 Ice Bar.

The entire bar is made of ice. "The walls, everything," manager Chris Eldridge said. "The chairs you're sitting on, the glass you're drinking out of, even the light above your head is made of ice."

Promoters say it's all carved out of "100 per cent Canadian ice."

The truth is, it's special, extra-clear "carvers" ice — some from Canada, the rest from Philadelphia, Las Vegas and Minneapolis.

It's the cool place to be

The temperature inside? A soothing 23 degrees Fahrenheit.

That translates to -5 on the Celsius scale, hence the name.

Any heat-emitting devices that could melt the Arctic freeze — like cellphones — must be deposited in temperature-proof lockers at the door.

There are already two Minus5 bars in Las Vegas.

Put this on your bucket list

The only concessions to warm comfort are some couches covered in deerskin. Drinks reflect the icy clarity: mostly vodka-based cocktails in custom-designed glasses made from artesian water.

Bartender Paul Stavros was decked out for his eight-hour shift. He wore thermal underwear and snow boots.

Happy birthday, dear app store. In honour of Apple's app store turning five this week, the folks over in Cupertino, Calif., are celebrating their half decade by giving away five games and five apps. Make sure to get yours before the flash sale runs out (unclear when the sale ends, but rumours suggest the end of the week).

Badland:

With accolades such as the 2013 Apple Design Award, why not try this physics puzzle game based in a fairytale-like forest while it's free ($4).

How to Cook Everything:

Who said there's no such thing as a free lunch? The Holy Grail of cookbooks, New York Times' Mark Bittman's How to Cook Everything, which usually goes for around $10, is up for grabs.

Traktor DJ HD:

This professional mixing app usually goes for $20 and includes DJ effects like BeatMasher, reverb and relay.

RE: Lac-Mégantic begins the week with a shattered core and dozens still missing, published July 8

Where exactly do they think the 40 or so people went?

Look at the destruction and flames that carried on for hours. Do they expect to find bodies? Or do they expect to scientifically connect ashes?

Warning signs my . You leave a train that is a potential mega big bomb alone and say there might have been warning signs.

People have lost loved ones and everything they had and this zigging around to find why the train killed them is disgusting.

The fact is it did, now own up to it and help these people.

Godzilla: a historical movie figure

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

For someone who grew up watching Godzilla stomp his way through the major cities of the world, the idea of a sea monster large enough to use a battleship as a baseball bat is very exciting. In Pacific Rim director Guillermo del Toro presents the biggest movie monsters seen since the Blue Oyster Cult sang, Oh no, there goes Tokyo, go go Godzilla!

Pacific Rim's monsters are direct descendants of the "kaiju" or strange beasts that became popular in the sci-fi films produced by the Japanese company Toho in the 1950s and '60s. Most famous is the king of all monsters, Godzilla, the giant lizard who wreaked havoc in 29 movies. Rounding out Toho's big five are a Divine Moth called Mothra and a trio of kaiju named King Ghidorah, Mechagodzilla, and Rodan.

The first Godzilla film came in 1954. The story of an ancient dinosaur-like colossus created by American nuclear weapons testing was inspired by a news story about the Lucky Dragon 5, a Japanese fishing boat contaminated after sailing too close to a U.S. nuclear test.

"Suitmation actor" Haruo Nakajima played the beast and could only walk 30 feet at a stretch in the 200-pound Godzilla suit. To create the monster's fearful roars, audio engineers threw reverb on the sound of a resin-coated leather glove rubbed on the strings of a double bass. Ten years after that movie, King Ghidorah, a fearsome alien dragon, was created as Godzilla's archenemy.

Director del Toro too busy to take in a movie

Blockbuster. Guillermo talks making Pacific Rim and making movies in Hollywood

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

KERRY HAYES/WARNER BROS. PICTURES/MCT

Guillermo del Toro is first and foremost a movie buff, which has been causing him a distinct amount of unhappiness.

You see, del Toro has been so busy making movies — particularly his latest, the giant robots vs. giant monsters blockbuster Pacific Rim — that he hasn't had any time to actually watch other people's movies. Or at least that's the excuse he gives for not having seen Man of Steel or the first instalment of the Hobbit, which he was originally pegged to direct.

There's been a lot of criticism about the levels of carnage shown in Man of Steel. Your film also features a great deal of urban destruction. How do you keep from crossing the line from fun into too realistic?

Well, kaiju movies by definition bring a completely escapist fun in these type of fights. When you're a kid and you're watching Godzilla stomp a bunch of tanks or jets or cut through a city, the proportions of these things are so enormous that you cannot correlate them to anything real. What I do is I then bring in visually a very different sense of style from reality. I have these super-coloured lights illuminating the rain, so it looks like a living comic book or a living anime, you know? And the thing that I do very, very consciously is I vacated all the streets so they would be empty of people. So you're never thinking, "Oh, the kaiju just crushed 600 people." Because the streets are vacated and everybody's in a refuge, all they can destroy is buildings and vehicles when nobody's there.

Have you seen Man of Steel?

No, I haven't. I haven't seen many movies because I've been making one. The only two or three times I've gone to the movies in the last few years have been to movies that my daughters want to see. So I went to Les Miserables and I went to some animated movies — movies that I would not necessarily have gravitated towards. But that's being a parent, taking your daughters to see the Justin Bieber concert movie.

Does that mean you have to go see the One Direction movie later this summer?

No, no (laughs). Actually my daughters are not into that stuff.

Are you planning to do another non-English language film anytime soon, or do you live in Hollywood exclusively now?

Yeah, I would love to. I produce a lot of movies in Latin America and Spain and I'm producing a movie right now in Mexico. As a director I would love to do it, but I need to find a story that suits me. It's not like I have a drawer full of stories in Spanish and in English.

What determines if a story is better told in Spanish rather than English?

You cannot aspire to do a movie that is as quirky as Pan's Labyrinth in the Hollywood machinery. It would get tested and noted by executives to death. It would end up having a happy ending and all that bulls—, you know? And at the same time you cannot end up with a movie that is as spectacular and huge and magnificent in showmanship as Pacific Rim if you do it in Mexico or Spain. So depending on the scale of the story, depending on if you need to protect the production value and spectacle or if you need to protect the content and quirkiness of the story, you go from one (end of the) scale to another.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Nick Lachey sings for his dinner

Nick Lachey turned up the heat during a brief tour stop in New York on Monday to help launch a viral advertising campaign for Wendy's new Pretzel Burger.

The '90s heartthrob, back on tour with a reunited 98 Degrees, gave an intimate performance at a Midtown Wendy's, singing songs based on some tweets about the burger chain's latest creation. Yes, you read that correctly.

"It's not the easiest thing to write a song out of tweets," Lachey said about Monday night's performance. The song he created especially for this event? "Pretzel Buns I Am a Fan... Hashtag." That is literally what he sang. (The Word really wants to know what his paycheque was for this. Let's hope it wasn't just in Pretzel Burgers, even though he admitted that he's "a huge pretzel guy.")

Lachey was right back on the road after the event to prepare for the West Coast leg of the tour. Now 39, life on the road comes with different responsibilities for Lachey and his wife Vanessa, who are bringing their newborn son, Camden, along for the ride.

"It's different, but it's cool to come off stage and know your family is there and your son is sleeping in a crib on the bus," he said. "In a lot of ways it's a much cooler dynamic just having the opportunity to spend time with them and the opportunity to share those memories. It's a lot more meaningful than to be out on your own." METRO WITH REPORTING FROM CHRIS LONGO

George Clooney

George Clooney is on the market

George Clooney is back on the market — and apparently he has been for longer than people think. Clooney and girlfriend Stacy Keibler have reportedly parted ways and have been trying to keep the split under wraps for as long as possible, according to Radar Online.

"They did break up," a source says, noting that the split was "amicable" and "due to schedule, nothing more." Clooney and Keibler have been spending time apart the last two months while dodging breakup rumours.

"It's been slowly falling apart for awhile," a source tells Us Weekly. "Stacy knew George was not the man to settle down with."

From far and wide, the True North is Amazing TV

The Amazing Race. The hugely popular reality TV show is coming north of the border with a Canadian edition

ON THE MOVE
Loren Christie
life@metronews.ca

Canada is finally getting its own version of The Amazing Race.

Helming the show is host and Olympic athlete Jon Montgomery.

What made you want to be the host?
It intimidated me and scared me and I like that. As people we learn the most when we challenge ourselves, when we live outside our comfort zone.

What do you bring to the show?
Just an aspect of being myself. I think that's what was perhaps endearing at the 2010 Games. Just being someone who Canadians identified as being uniquely Canadian, being honest, being you, drinking beer. A big beer. If people identify me as an average Joe Canadian, then that's something I am really proud of. I set lofty goals for myself, but I am just an average guy getting it done.

The cast of Canada's Amazing Race. HANDOUT

Did you have any input into the roadblocks or detours?
They didn't pick my brain. I was simply tasked with being the host. But in the role I got to explain and do all the challenges. I demonstrate them. That's what will be different from Phil's (original series host Phil Keoghan) role and my role.

How long did the filming take? How many legs?
It was three weeks, every day. I believe 10 episodes in total. Each episode isn't just a day; they can span a couple of days. There were crazy hours just like in the U.S. one. People are fighting tooth and nail to get across this country.

What surprised you most about Canada?
Lots of places I didn't know about. We experienced a desert, mountains in places that I didn't expect to see them. At every stop there was some element of surprise. And I considered myself to be a pretty knowledgeable guy about our country.

Can you tell me one place the show went?
I can tell you we took a great many planes and automobiles to get from coast to coast to coast.

You said coast three times?
We do go north. If there is a Canadian out there wondering if they will see an aspect of their area of the country in this TV show, the answer is — yes!

THE AMAZING RACE CANADA WILL AIR MONDAYS AT 9 P.M. ET/PT BEGINNING JULY 15 ON CTV.

While it's easy to spend a fortune in Copenhagen, one of Europe's most expensive cities, the Danish capital also has a lot to offer for travellers on a tight budget. The city centre is compact enough that you can get around on foot, enjoying the top sights and walking in the footsteps of fairy-tale writer Hans Christian Andersen — without spending a single krone.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

5 free things to do in Copenhagen

Window shopping

Skip the souvenir shops with plastic Viking helmets and explore the internationally acclaimed world of Danish design, from the hand-painted china at Royal Copenhagen to the cutting-edge fashion boutiques with clothes from homegrown designers like Noir, Munthe plus Simonsen, Day Birger et Mikkelsen and Baum und Pferdgarten. If you visit in December, don't miss the Yuletide markets with Christmastime treats at Hoejbro Plads or Nyhavn.

Take in a concert

Copenhagen was home to a prominent jazz scene in the 1960s and 1970s, when many American jazz musicians settled here. The annual jazz festival still draws big names in early July (this year, July 5 to 14) and many concerts are held outdoors, rain or shine. Many are free.

Stop by a museum

Take advantage of free admission to state-run museums, including the National Museum, the National Gallery or the Post & Tele Museum, where you can try out a telephone with a crank handle and lift a rather heavy early mobile phone (also check out the splendid view from the rooftop café). The David Collection features work from Vilhelm Hammershoei and other Danish painters, and a rare collection of Islamic art. Admission to the permanent collections is free, but there is a fee for temporary exhibits.

Walk in Hans Christian Andersen's footsteps

The 19th century author of The Little Mermaid, The Emperor's New Clothes, The Ugly Duckling and other fairy tales was born in central Denmark, but lived and died in Copenhagen. The city has two statues of him: one in the Kongens Have park and another, more famous, outside City Hall.

Find Ariel — paparazzi-style

The location of the iconic Little Mermaid statue is a bit off, and be advised: her size is underwhelming. Still, many find her worth the half-hour walk from the downtown area. A tribute to Andersen's fairy tale, the 100-year-old bronze statue is free to admire and photograph. Unfortunately, the easy access has also led to acts of vandalism.

Tuna Tartare Layered with Avocado

I have been served this exquisite appetizer in the top restaurants I have frequented.

I so badly wanted to create my own simple version. It is quick to prepare, elegant to serve, incredibly healthy and oh so delicious.

You can substitute the Mirin for a sake wine or rice wine vinegar with a little bit of added sugar.

1. Place tuna in a bowl along with soy sauce, Mirin, 1 1/2 tsp lemon juice, ginger, garlic, wasabi and sesame seeds. Let marinate in the refrigerator for a minimum of 15 minutes and up to 2 hours.

2. Toss the avocado with lemon juice to prevent discolouration.

3. With a quarter measuring cup, sprayed with vegetable oil, fill half way with one sixth of avocado, then one sixth of tuna. Press down firmly, then carefully invert onto serving plate. Repeat with remaining tuna and avocado until you've made 6 individual apps. Garnish with sesame seeds.

E-mploy me. Creating an application package that conquers all of today's web-based roadblocks

MEGHAN GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

Online job searches have become the easiest way for students and new grads to apply for jobs. This makes it critical to understand how online job searches actually work and how to ensure that you prepare your application successfully. How can you do this? Talk with the experts.

Resumé coach Pamela Paterson has 15 years of experience teaching about the art and science of creating effective resumés. She's the author of the new book Get the Job: Optimize Your Resumé for the Online Job Search and she was able to provide some egg-cellent online job searching expertise and tips.

Take the road less travelled when typing up your resumé by doing away with the dull. ISTOCK

What is the resumé writing system you refer to in your book?

The resumé writing system is a comprehensive approach to writing resumés and getting them highly ranked in online job systems. It consists of six key steps:

1. Learning the system (beginning in the right way to achieve success).

2. Creating an effective layout and design (so your resumé is not rejected by online job systems).

3. Boosting your content (overcoming deficits and word choice problems).

4. Tailoring your resumé for online job systems (understanding how to become highly ranked — it's about more than just keywords).

5. Keeping your resumé on top of the competition (by doing what few people know how to do).

6. Testing and releasing your resumé to prospective employers.

You also discuss the other side — applicant tracking systems (ATS) — in your book. What are some effective ways to get through this system when applying for a job?

ATSs can search resumés in almost any conceivable way — really, in any way the (employer) wants this system configured. Some people think that if they just include keywords from the job listing, their resumé will be filtered in a favourable way.

Job listing keywords help, but it is not the only strategy you need. ATSs may also search by other keywords, such as competitors' names. ATSs can search by job title, the date you last held the job title, the percentage that your resumé matches the job posting and even the method that you applied to the job, such as to the company directly or through a job board. There is a perception that job seekers who apply to the company directly are more interested in working for the company itself, and they may be higher ranked because of it.

How should job seekers tailor their resumés?

Don't come across as "plain vanilla" like the thousands of other jobseekers.

You won't grab anybody's attention. One technique is to provide factual, objective information rather than subjective information that could be based on opinion.

For example, don't say you are "intelligent" if you can say you have a 4.0 GPA. Don't say you're "hard working" if you can include a snippet of a quote from a former manager who says you are a "major contributor on projects and a valued team member." Prospective employers like to see evidence on a resumé as opposed to opinion.

If you can provide statistics, even better. For example, rather than saying you designed a "large and complex" asset management system, you could say that you designed an asset management system that "managed the assets of 13,000 staff." Always be as factual as you can, and let the words do the talking for you as opposed to including subjective claims.

Keep tabs on triumphs

Suddenly seeking CV. Need an updated resumé ASAP? A spreadsheet of your latest skills will make building one a breeze

JESSICA CRUZ
TalentEgg.ca

Keeping a database of your skills is helpful when you are applying for more than one type of job and building separate resumés. ISTOCK

Do you ever find yourself scrambling to fix your resumé to meet the deadline? Do you have trouble tailoring your skills to job descriptions?

Or perhaps you accidentally deleted experience from the last version of your resumé that could be relevant to a new job you just found.

Applying for jobs, compiling resumés and writing cover letters consumes a lot of time. Keeping a "master list" of your accomplishments will help you organize skills, experience and activities that could come in handy for future job applications.

Let's say a new job comes up that requires social media and written communication skills. Here's how a database can locate, sort, and cultivate fast resumé points:

First, create a spreadsheet in a program like Microsoft Excel or Google Drive and add tab sections for various aspects of your career, such as skills, work and volunteer experience, education, references, contacts, etc.

Tabs help organize different sections and keep them all in one document.

Skills and experience

Place your volunteer experience and work experience in separate columns. Sort them chronologically with as much detail as you can remember. If you're just starting, copy and paste the relevant experience from existing resumé drafts. This database will be a great source for skills and experiences for future resumé and cover letter content.

Education

The education tab sorts out your schools, awards and related extra-curricular activities. Hopefully you will begin to see correlations between this information and the jobs you're applying for, and decide whether certain details will be added to each resumé.

References and contacts

Emails and business cards often pile up or get thrown away. Having each person's contact information in a spreadsheet can help you keep track of who they are, how you met them, what you discussed, the last time you contacted them and more. Social media tools like LinkedIn keep professional connections updated, but it's always good to have a backup space with additional context. Tabs in one spreadsheet are a great way to organize these contacts.

TALENTEGG.CA IS CANADA'S LEADING JOB SITE AND ONLINE CAREER RESOURCE FOR COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY STUDENTS AND RECENT GRADUATES.

Cover letters

Most jobs still require cover letters. Are you looking for relevant experience that relates to a job listing?

- Your master list will outline everything you need to plug in to match the requirements! Choose wisely, spruce up your sentences and you're ready to apply.

WHISTLER BLACKCOMB
PEAK 2 PEAK

It took prehistoric volcanoes, an ice age and some over-achieving engineers to get it right.

The PEAK 2 PEAK Alpine Experience

As the longest and highest lift in the world, it is an engineering feat; but the most remarkable thing about the PEAK 2 PEAK Gondola is where it takes you. Step aboard for a 4.4 km journey between the top of Whistler and Blackcomb Mountains, and soak in 360 degree views of peaks and glaciers. Step off and you'll find yourself in a ruggedly-breathtaking environment a million years in the making. Lucky for you, scenic interpretive walks, a freshly prepared meal, and a cappuccino bar were also part of our evolutionary process.

ROOMS starting from $94* PER NIGHT

*Starting from rate is per night based on 2 adults sharing a studio from July 10 - 30, 2013. Offer is subject to availability at time of booking and may change without notice. Taxes and fees are extra. Minimum night stays, weekends rates and/or other restrictions may apply.

WIND THROUGH WHISTLER TRAILS

When most people look up at the incredible alpine area of Whistler Blackcomb they think of epic powder and high-speed lifts that whisk you up the mountain in seconds.

However, in the summer this amazing area is littered with more than 50 kilometres of hiking, running and interpretive walking trails that wind through a volcanic landscape surrounded by jaw-dropping vistas.

The Coast Mountain Range was created through a combination of glacial and volcanic activity more than 11,000 years ago. Imagine the Fitzsimmons-Whistler valley completely covered in ice, with frequent volcanic eruptions breaking through these fields of ice. Black Tusk and its unique jagged peak was created this way, and it literally feels as though you can reach out and touch it from the gorgeous alpine of Whistler Mountain. The Tusk also lies within Garibaldi Park and is one of the most spectacular backdrops for photos in the Sea 2 Sky corridor.

There is something for everyone atop Whistler Blackcomb with hikes for every level. Easy walking and hiking trails snake their way off into the alpine via the Peak 2 Peak Gondola on both mountains, and the harder trails, High Note Trail on Whistler and Decker Loop Trail on Blackcomb, take you further away from civilization. Both are steeper and longer in duration.

No matter what your walking, hiking or trail running level is, it is important to be prepared before you head off to explore these magical trails. Alpine weather can change quickly, and despite being a hot day down in the Whistler Village the temperature up top can be much cooler.

Ensuring you have the proper footwear, food, water and extra clothing will make your time up top much more enjoyable. Letting someone know what your plans are and where you are heading is also of utmost importance.

Now get out and explore.

DID YOU KNOW?

Whistler Mountain is located in the Fitzsimmons Range of the Coast Mountains, situated on the northwestern edge of Garibaldi Provincial Park. The original name of the mountain was London Mountain, named after a mining claim in the area.

U-18s face finals test again

Soccer. Whitecaps' residency team looks to avenge last year's heartbreaking loss in USSDA final

CAM TUCKER
cam.tucker@metronews.ca

Yassin Essa of the Whitecaps' U-18 residency team was a member of the same club that lost in the USSDA final last year. BOB FRID/VANCOUVER WHITECAPS FC

Yassin Essa was there. He remembers the soccer heartbreak that the Vancouver Whitecaps U-18 residency team went through last summer.

Essa was a member of the team when it lost the 2012 championship match of the U.S. Soccer Development Academy finals week to the FC Dallas residency side by a final of 3-2.

There's need for reminder, only because the Whitecaps' residency team is back to the USSDA finals week, which begins Sunday in Houston, Texas.

"The motivation is that I want to win this year," said Essa, who hails from Surrey.

"We lost it last year when we should've won the game. This is the last year for me to play in the academy league, so I want to end it on a good term."

Essa, who has also seen time on the pitch for the Whitecaps Reserves, has played in 30 games for the residency team this season, scoring 21 goals. That's second on the team, behind Brody Huitema.

In reserves matches, he's played alongside the likes of Darren Mattocks, the Whitecaps' first-round pick in the 2012 MLS SuperDraft, and Erik Hurtado, a first-round selection this year.

So, it's only natural for Essa to want to pass along what he's learned from the reserves matches to those on the residency side, especially as they prepare for this finals week.

"You learn a lot of things from those guys … like how they play and how they talk to each other (and communicate)," he said.

"That helps a lot, and when you come to the residency, you just pass that message."

The Whitecaps' residency team finished the season with a 22-6-3 record, at the top of the Northwest Division in the Western Conference.

They qualified for the finals after going 3-0 in the playoffs, which they completed June 27, after playing three games in four days.

The Whitecaps' residency team opens the finals week against the Seattle Sounders FC U-18 team on Sunday.

Lions running back Andrew Harris GETTY IMAGES FILE

CFL. Harris named Week 2's top Canadian

Andrew Harris chewed up the Toronto Argonauts along the ground last week, and was named the CFL's Canadian Player of the Week as a result.

Harris was recognized for the weekly award on Tuesday.

The B.C. Lions' non-import running back had 103 yards rushing and a touchdown on 15 carries, as well as 49 yards receiving, as the Lions earned their first victory of the season last week against the Argos.

The Lions also announced that they added long snapper Jordan Matechuk to the 46-man roster. He comes to B.C. having recently spent time on the Saskatchewan Roughriders' practice roster.

The Lions are on the road this weekend, as they visit Edmonton to take on the Eskimos in a West Division match-up Saturday. METRO

The 2014 Chevy Silverado

Review. Chasing the Ford 150 means adding in more of everything that truckers want

1 Ford F-150
Base price: $21,650

2 Ram 1500
Base price: $28,700

In pickup parlance the chase isn't just on, it never really stops. With the arrival of the 2014 Chevrolet Silverado, the pace is definitely quickening.

In 2012, 265,000 domestic- and foreign-based 1500, 2500 and 3500-series pickups were sold in Canada and 40 per cent belonged to Ford. GM's Silverado/Sierra models came second place, ahead of Chrysler's Ram and well ahead of the Toyota Tundra and Nissan Titan.

With the all-new Silverado 1500-series, Chevrolet appears to have done its homework and paid close attention to what buyers are looking for to haul and tow their stuff. There are more powerful engines as well as improvements and upgrades in nearly every other category you could imagine.

Behind the tailgate, the handy Corner Step bumper has recessed footholds that, combined with built-in handholds inside the box, make accessing the bed much easier. The dashboard and control panel that houses the optional eight-inch touch screen are positioned in a tidy pod for easy viewing and all of the oversized knobs and switches are work-glove-friendly and clearly marked.

All body styles — regular, extended Double Cab (now featuring front-hinged rear doors with outside handles) and four-door Crew Cab — are attached to a reworked frame with more high-strength steel, extra bracing for stiffness and improved body mounts that help isolate road noise and vibration. The revised suspension places the wheels on each axle farther apart with a goal to improve overall ride and stability.

For 2014, Chevrolet has made a few changes to the Silverado's box size/cab combinations. Now you can order the Crew Cab with a longer 80-inch (200-centimetre) bed as well as the standard 68-inch (175-centimetre) version.

Perched between the frame rails is a choice of three new all-aluminum cam-in-block engines. The entry point is a 4.3-litre V6 that features the same displacement as the previous V6, but the output has significantly increased to 285 horsepower and 305 pound-feet of torque from 195/260. Optional is a 5.3-litre V8 with 355 horses and 383 pound-feet on tap, up from 315/335.

Later in the model year they'll be joined by an available 6.2-litre V8 rated at 420 horsepower and 440 pound-feet of torque, which shares its parts with the new Corvette sports car V8. Chevrolet also likes to point out that it has increased performance and reduced fuel consumption across the line without resorting to complex (and expensive) turbo-charging. That's a direct shot at the Ford F-Series and its "Ecoboost" V6.

Of course you can order your Silverado as a stripped-down, rubber-matted V6 work rig with a $27,150 sticker, or head all the way up to the new and thoroughly tricked-out High Country 4x4 with a correspondingly high list price. It's a brand new trim level designed to keep well-to-do ranchers driving in the lap of luxury.

Whichever pickup matches your needs, know that Chevrolet has made the right changes for a more refined and fuel efficient Silverado to keep pace with Ford.

Fuel economy

The transmission for all is a six-speed automatic. The result, at least for the more muscular V6, is a significant fuel economy improvement in city and highway driving (best guess of 12.0 l/100 km in the city and 7.8 on the highway, compared to 14.1/10.0 for the previous V6).

Direct injection

All three powerplants feature direct injection, which tailors the fuel load for the task at hand. They also have continuously variable valve timing (which allows in more fuel and air depending on the power needs) and cylinder deactivation that cuts off up to half the cylinders in light load and cruise situations.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
If someone starts looking into your private affairs then you have every right to tell them to mind their own business. Don't be too forceful though or they may think you have something to hide and look even more.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You are in a restless mood at the moment and it's unlikely you will be in the same place when the Sun goes down. For some reason, your surroundings no longer excite you.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You will be in a charitable mood today and there is nothing wrong with that, but if you are going to give money away make sure it is to genuinely worthy causes.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You may not be able to explain the way you feel but that's probably no bad thing. If you dwell too much on your emotions today, you won't get much work done. Make sure your head rules your heart.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
It seems you don't know whether to control your desires or indulge them. From past experience, you know that if you hold back, you are likely to regret it later on. Have fun.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You may want to sit on the fence in some kind of domestic dispute but the planets won't let you. Like it or not, you have to choose sides and hope it all works out amicably in the end. Don't worry, it will.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Take your pleasures where you find them and don't worry that some of those you live and work with don't seem able to get much joy out of life. You can't change their outlook.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Things are going so well for you at the moment that you may be a bit worried. Will fate turn round and slap you down? No. Though if you start thinking that way, you increase the chances of it occurring.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Why are you letting minor matters assume major importance, at least in your mind? Whatever the reason you need to snap out of it — not later but right now.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You may be the kind of person who prefers the tried and trusted. But the more you chop and change and move around today, the more fun you will have. If travelling on your own, you won't be alone for long.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
It's good that you are easygoing and it's good that you like to help people but don't forget that not everyone thinks and feels the same way. Be on your guard today as someone may try to cheat you.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Don't bother asking friends for an opinion on what you are doing. It's unlikely they will be honest with you. The reason you are asking is that you have doubts yourself. SALLY BROMPTON
